

British Mystery Multipack Volume 11 - The Murders in the Rue Morgue, The Mystery of Marie Roget, A Stolen Letter, Fountainblue, No Mans Land, The Clue and The Dream Doctor (Illustrated)

Core blimey, mate! Its British Mystery Multipacks Volume 11, a crackling cornucopia of classic cozies from across the pond: The Murders in the Rue Morgue by Edgar Allan Poe, and its sequel The Mystery of Marie Roget Guest US author Edgar Allan Poe invented the detective genre with these twin tales featuring Parisian criminologist C. Auguste Dupin. In The Murders in the Rue Morgue the French supersleuth investigates the savage murder of a mother and daughter. In the sequel, The Mystery of Marie Roget, Dupin is on the hunt of a killer in a case based on the true story of Mary Rogers, a saleswoman at a cigar store in Manhattan whose body was found floating in the Hudson River in 1841. The Lawyers Story of A Stolen Letter by Wilkie Collins An early detective mystery, probably influenced by Poes Dupin tales. The narrator is a lawyer who contrives, in a series of ingenious moves, to steal back an incriminating letter from a blackmailer. Fountainblue and No Mans Land by John Buchan Fountainblue is the story of a rich man who returns to Scotland believing he has everything he needs in life - until he encounters Clara Etheridge. But he must compete with a local man for her love. A misadventure at sea forces the situation to a crisis. No Mans Land is an occult mystery about an ancient culture in the Pictish land of Scotland. The Clue by Carolyn Wells A Fleming Stone mystery from the golden age of detective fiction. The Clue falls squarely in the tradition of two favorite mystery sub-genres the Big House Mystery and the Locked Room Mystery. The Dream Doctor by Arthur B. Reeve Craig Kennedy is a scientist detective at Columbia University similar to Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Thorndyke. He uses his knowledge of chemistry and James Bond-like gadgets in his work such as lie detectors, gyroscopes, and portable seismographs.
