This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text. Purchasers can download a free scanned copy of the original book (without typos) from the publisher. Not indexed. Not illustrated. 1873 Excerpt: ...of authorship. Jas. Crossi.ev. If Eric will turn over a few more pages of his Lowndes, and halt when he comes to the entry Burke, Kt. Hon. Edmund, he will find at p. 316, right-hand column, eight lines from the top, that Chitteldroogs editions of 1765 and 1770 are not remarkable for their absence. The last four words are marked by Eric as a quotation; but surely conspicuous is the proper reading instead of remarkable. Ch Itteldroog. Nursery Riitmes (4th S. xii. 167.)--The grand dep6t for these kind of things is Gammer Gurtons Garland (see N. & Q., 4th S. xi. 409), where L. D. will find The Gay Lady that went to Church. The versions differ. A. G. The best version of this old rhyme is that given inBitsons Gammer Gurtons Garland, 1810. As the book is rare, I transcribe it:--There was a lady all skin and bone; Sure such a lady was never known: It happend upon a certain day, This lady went to church to pray. When she came to the church stile, There she did rest a little while; When she came to the church yard, Then the bells so loud she heard. When she came to the church door, She stopt to rest a little more: When she came the church within, The parson prayd gainst pride and sin. On looking up, on looking down, She saw a dead man on the ground; And from his nose unto his chin, The worms crawld out, the worms craw Id in. Then she unto the parson said, Shall I be so when I am dead 1 O yes! O yes, the parson said, You will be so when you are dead. Here the lady screams. This quaint old ditty is also printed, with the air, in Nursery Rhymes, ivith the Tunes to which they are still sung in the Nurseries of England, &c. By Edward F. Rimbault, LL.D., F....
