

Petty Troubles of Married Life, Complete

Is it a petty or a profound trouble? I knew not; it is profound for your sons-in-law or daughters-in-law, but exceedingly petty for you. Petty! You must be joking; why, a child costs terribly dear! exclaims a ten-times-too-happy husband, at the baptism of his eleventh, called the little last newcomer, a phrase with which women beguile their families. What trouble is this? you ask me. Well! this is, like many petty troubles of married life, a blessing for some one. You have, four months since, married off your daughter, whom we will call by the sweet name of CAROLINE, and whom we will make the type of all wives. Caroline is, like all other young ladies, very charming, and you have found for her a husband who is either a lawyer, a captain, an engineer, a judge, or perhaps a young viscount. But he is more likely to be what sensible families must seek, the ideal of their desire, the only son of a rich landed proprietor. (See the Preface.) This phoenix we will call ADOLPHE, whatever may be his position in the world, his age, and the color of his hair. The lawyer, the captain, the engineer, the judge, in short, the son-in-law, Adolphe, and his family, have seen in Miss Caroline: I. Miss Caroline; II. The only daughter of your wife and you. Here, as in the Chamber of Deputies, we are compelled to call for a division of the house:
