

The Magic World : complete with original Illustration (Illustrated)

But the empty sardine-tin attached to Lord Hughs tail and hind legsthis had a voice, and, rattling against stairs, banisters, and the legs of stricken furniture, it cried aloud for vengeance. Lord Hugh, suffering violently, added his voice, and this time the family heard. There was a chase, a chorus of Poor pussy! and Pussy, then! and the tail and the tin and Lord Hugh were caught under Janes bed. The tail and the tin acquiesced in their rescue. Lord Hugh did not. He fought, scratched, and bit. Jane carried the scars of that rescue for many a long week.
