Not illustrated. 1752 Excerpt: ...the Society of Writers would quickly be reduced to a very inconsiderable Number, if Men were put upon making Books, with the fatal Connsinement of delivering nothing beyond what is to the Purpose. It is acknowledged, that were the Cafe the lame among us, as with the Greets and Romans, when Learning was in its Cradle, to be reared, and sed, and clothed by Invention; it would be an easy Task to sill up Volumes upon particular Occasions, withoutfarther expatiating from the Subject, than by.moderate Excursions, helping to advances clear the main Design. But with Knowledge it.has fared as with a numerous Army, encamped in i. fruitful Country; which for a sew Days maintains itself bythe Product of the Soil it Is on.; till Provi Jions sions being spent, they send to forage many a Mile, among Friends or Enemies, it matters not. Mean while, the neighbouring Fields trampled and beaten down, become barren and dry, affording no Sustenance but Clouds of Dust. The whole Course of Things being thus entirely changed between us and the Antients, and the Moderns wisely sensible of it; we of this Age have discovered a shorter, and more prudent Method, to become Scholars and Wits, without the Fatigue of reading or of thinking. The most accomplished Way of using Books at present, is twofold: either, sirst, to serve them as some Men do Lords, learn their Title. exactly, and then bragof their Acquaintance; orr. secondly, which is indeed the choicer,.the profounder, and politer Method, to get a thorough Insight into the Index, by which the whole Book is governed and turned, like Fishes by the Tail. For to enter the. Palace of Learning at the Great Gate, requires an Expençe of Time and Forms;

therefore Men of- much Haste and little Ceremony are content to get in by the Back-door...
